Australian Prime Minister Chooses Hay Shed Hill Chardonnay

White Australia Policy Flows from Rudd Cellar

“(Australian) Prime Minister Kevin Rudd’s preference for chicken and fish at dinner time appears to be affecting his choice of tippie at the Lodge. An inventory of Mr Rudd’s personal wine cellar, released to The West Australian under Freedom of Information laws, reveals that just as the PM has lost his hunger for red meat, he is also turning his nose up at red wine. ....Surprisingly there are no prestige drops like a Penfolds venerable Grange or the highly rated Henschke Hill of Grace in the collection, with most of the PM’s plonk costing less than $40 a bottle and even cheaper by the dozen. ....WA wines feature prominently in bulk in the Lodge’s collection and seem well-suited for entertaining big parties. Mr Rudd has 54 bottles of Hay Shed Hill Chardonnay, 42 bottles of Houghton Pemberton sauvignon blanc Semillon, and 15 bottles of Evans & Tate merlot...” Andrew Tillett, The West Australian 14th April 2009
